

ABSTRACT OF THE DISCLOSURE

A movable barrier operator includes an absolute position detector which provides a unique value for each position of the barrier along its path of travel. The 5 absolute position detector employs multiple binary serial streams and one multiple clock stream. After the first five cycles of the clock stream, the binary streams can be decoded by a processor to produce an absolute position. Every clock edge produces a new absolute position along the 10 path of travel.